Diamondhead clears first hurdle blocking district

BY D.C. HARVILL
A group of Diamondhead residents have cleared the first hurdle in their efforts to establish a water and sewer district for their community.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution Thursday declaring their intent to form the district. Before the district can be created, however, its proponents must acquire a certificate of need from the Mississippi

Public Service Commission. "We had many discussions with both sides. We had a hearing. We had briefs filed supporting both positions, and it was our determination that there were inadequacies with the functioning and capability of the system in place," Board President Ronald Cuevas said. After acquiring a certificate of need the group seeking creation of the district will have to purchase, or acquire through eminent domain proceedings, the existing utilities system owned by Peter J. Casano.

If a petition signed by 20 percent or 150 qualified voters, whichever is less, living within the proposed district is filed protesting the district's creation, an election must be held.

Creation of the district would have to be approved by 60 percent of the voters before it will be allowed.

The board will proceed with creation of the district if the petition is not filed within 14 days after the advertisement of the board's declaration of intent, Board Attorney Gerald Gex said.

Diamondhead Water, Sewer Improvement Association, proponents of the proposed district, reportedly hope to purchase the system from Casano for $75,000. The utility's financial records, however, indicate that the system has a value in excess of $4 million.

Founder of the association, Daniel Smith, citing a 10 to one response in favor of the district, said he does not expect a protest.

After the district is created, opponents have 15 days in which to file an appeal, according to Gex.

If an appeal of the board's decision is filed, the court will decide if the board's action was proper, he said.

A Diamondhead Utility Commission will be formed if the district is created.

Planchard named 1989 UN campaign chairman

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Stephen M. Planchard, branch manager of Hancock Bank, Diamondhead, has been named 1989 United Way Campaign chairman for Hancock County.

Planchard was a co-chairman of the 1988 campaign in the Diamondhead area and was a unanimous choice of the officers and directors, Chuck Benvenuti, UW president, said.

A $100,000 goal has been established for the 1989 campaign for 1990 funding for the United Way of Hancock County.

Benvenuti added, "This is a historic campaign for us, as we celebrate 25 years of caring within our community. Planchard's chairmanship is of a special significance, as Hancock Bank was among our first supporters and has continued to support United Way over the history of the organization in our county."

The campaign is also being dedicated to May Beyer, who has served as executive secretary since the United Way of Hancock County was founded.

Planchard graduated from Loyola University of New Orleans with a major in finance with emphasis in marketing. He is also a graduate of the University of Mississippi School of Banking, a native of Jackson and resident of Waveland, he is a member of St. Clare's Catholic Church.

He and his wife Denise are the parents of a son, Matthew, age eight months.

His civic activities include director of the Diamondhead Business and Professional Organization, 1989 chairman of the Hancock County Heart Association and president-elect of the Rotary Club of Bay St. Louis.

In commenting about the $100,000 goal, which is a $30,000 increase over 1988's, Planchard stated "Our goal of $100,000 in 1989 is high, but with the continued support of the community, it is reachable. As the amount of funds received by the United Way increases, it enables more agencies to be added and also allows some increases in funds to existing agencies which have bigger needs."

Among the newer agencies of the United Way of Hancock County are St. Vincent de Paul Society, Pierre the Pelican, St. Michael's Farm for Boys and Parents and Professionals of Exceptional Children, Inc.

Labor Day events listed

BY D.C. HARVILL
Summer is not over until the autumnal equinox in mid-September, but the season's generally accepted grand finale is Monday—Labor Day.

Most members of America's work force will take advantage of Labor Day's three-day weekend to pay tribute to themselves with a flurry of picnics, fireworks and various other events.

Among special Labor Day events locally are a fireworks display and a charity telethon.

The Waveland Civic Association will sponsor the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon, beginning at 6 p.m. today and running until 6 p.m. Monday.

Local headquarters for the telethon will be Charlie Henderson Ford, Highway 90 at the Labor Day closings set for Monday

BY D.C. HARVILL
To give their employees an opportunity to enjoy summer's final fling, the following schedule changes have been made for Labor Day.

—Waveland City Hall will be closed Monday. The city's garbage pickup schedule will remain the same.

—Bay St. Louis City Hall will be closed Monday. The city's garbage pickup will run as usual.

—Hancock County Courthouse and Tax Assessor's office will be closed Monday.

—The Sea Coast Echo will be closed Monday.

Bay St. Louis-Waveland line. Louie Smolensky is this year's chairman.

According to association President Jay Lagasse, the telethon's goal for Hancock County and West Harrison County this year is $20,000.

Lagasse, whose father started the campaign, estimated that $100,000 has been raised locally in the 13 years the Civic Association has sponsored the event.

For the first time, donors may make their contributions through major credit cards.

A donation "fish bowl" will be on hand at the telethon headquarters and volunteers will be soliciting donations by "shaking cans" at various points around the county.

The Muscular Dystrophy Telethon may be contacted at 467-9005 during the 24-hour event.

The Civic Association's annual fireworks display, conducted by the Waveland Fire Department, will be this evening, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Waveland budget plan needs no tax increase

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Waveland Board of Aldermen is expected to approve the city's 1989-90 budget Tuesday night.

Mayor John Longo Jr. said the proposal includes a number of increases for capital improvements, but includes no tax increase.

There will also be no utility fee increases with the new budget and no fee for garbage collection, the mayor added.

Longo stated last month that there would be no fees for garbage collection when the city's landfill contractor, Gulf Coast Waste, asked for a rate increase.

The contractor was providing landfill space only because the city conducts its own collections and hauling.

The board agreed at that time to continue with Gulf Coast Waste for the current month only and other landfill arrangements are in progress, Longo said Friday.

Waveland currently does not charge for garbage collection, but had contracted for landfill space after the county landfill in Catahoula closed at the end of 1988.

Longo also said he expects the city to have to purchase at least one new garbage truck during the next fiscal year.

Most of the capital improvements listed in the proposal consist of new equipment for city departments, particularly the water and gas department.

Longo explained that part of the reason for the purchase of new equipment is to allow the city to save money by doing its own sewer installations.

has been doing a real good job for us and has been looking into this possibility for quite some time. I expect us to save a lot of money doing our own installations," the mayor said.

Other equipment includes a fire truck being bought on a lease-purchase arrangement and another police car.

The mayor also said the proposed budget includes an additional $225,000 for street paving, bringing that particular line item to a total of $300,000.

Paving the streets, he explained, is a long-term goal of the city and it is expected to reduce street maintenance costs.

The funds were saved for that purpose, Longo said, "by being careful with our money the last few years."

"Almost every street with homes on it is being paved. Then, in the next year or so, we hope to pave the ones without houses on them," he added.

Some of the increase can also be attributed to cost-of-living raises of about eight or nine percent for city employees and merit raises for certified personnel.

However, Longo said elected officials will not receive raises under the proposed budget.

"I really don't foresee much increase in the near future," he said.

The millage will be set Tuesday night as well and Longo said this year's proposal calls for a tax levy of 13.5 mills, the same as last year.

The mayor said 10 of those mills will go to general operations, while 3.5 will be used to satisfy bonds of indebtedness.

Some of that includes money for debts left over from Hurricane Camille. The city paid $60,000 this year on the Camille debt instead of the usual $32,000, and Longo said he hopes a larger payment can also be made during the next fiscal year.

The city's total ad valorem tax revenue is expected to total about $200,000, Longo said. An additional $1.5 million is expected to be generated by other sources, including such revenue as privilege, franchise and sales taxes.

"The city stands ready to absorb all expenses," the mayor stated. "The people are having difficulty enough as it is. The economy is not good and Mississippi and Louisiana have some of the highest unemployment rates in the nation."

Tuesday's board meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the downstairs section of city hall.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

With the bonanza in pork ribs offered all around the stores just now, the ambitious Labor Day barbecue chef can really star at the grill—and serve up an old-fashioned Southern "pig-pickin'" as the barbecue feast was called in earlier days!

Ten-pound boxes of lean, meaty pork riblets are offered at a super-special price at National (limit, 2 boxes while supply lasts) and lean, meaty pork riblets are specially priced also at Winn-Dixie, where lean and meaty spareribs are also specially priced—limit, 30 pounds, please.

Jitney Jungle also has spare ribs on sale, small size or larger—and family packs of ribs, Western style, also line the counters at Jitney.

When it comes to seasoning and saucing and cooking up those ribs, everyone, it seems, has a special way! Here's an old Southern rule from The Art of Southern Cooking cookbook, a collection of new and traditional old family recipes, published in the 1970's.

As author Mildred Warren laid the rules down for—

LOUIE'S SPARERIBS

"Use pork ribs, a pound per person. Leave in slab and cut after cooking; this keeps the meat from drying out in the cooking process. Trim excess fat from ribs. Now pick your favorite sausage seasoning and apply fairly heavy and rub in well on ribs.

Place on grill and sear on one side, turn and sear on other side. Continue cooking, turning frequently until done, approximately 30 to 45 minutes.

Be sure to coat rib slab well with seasoning as it is applied only before cooking. Immediately after cooking, cut ribs as desired and serve.

Or, you might want to try our usual way for:

RIBS ON THE BARBECUE PIT OR GRILL

Plan on a pound and a half of pork ribs per person, at least. Ask the butcher to crack them, or do it yourself with your handy cleaver. Powder liberally with fresh-ground black pepper, salt, pureed onion and garlic, and whatever other seasonings you wish.

Sear the ribs on each side for 10 minutes over the fire, then put on the grill in a big pot—a really big one—with just enough water to cover them. Bring to a boil, and continue boiling for 20 minutes. Remove the ribs and reserve cooking juices formed when you boiled them.

Place ribs on the grill, and baste well with the cooking juices and barbecue sauce of your choice as they cook until done. As they are finished, return them to the pot to keep warm until ready to serve.

Meanwhile, if you've picked up some of the pork chops on special at Delchamps or Winn-Dixie, swab liberally with sauce, place at the outer edges of the grill, and let them cook along with the ribs, basting them occasionally.

With canned baked pork and beans on special at Winn-Dixie, Jitney, Delchamps and National, you're all set for that always good accompaniment to barbecued ribs, aren't you? You might want to use the recipe I gave in Cooking Up A Storm a couple of columns ago, or you might prefer to season 'em up otherwise—but enjoy!

And, what's a Labor Day party outdoors without potato salad, I'm sure someone is asking, so snap up a 10-pound bag of Russets on sale at Jitney Jungle and Winn-Dixie, and make this off-the-beaten-track—a bit delicious:

JANE MOLLERE'S GERMAN POTATO SALAD

8 medium potatoes
6 eggs (hard cooked)
8 to 10 green onions
2 apples
4 ribs of celery
2 garlic cloves
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup olive oil
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
(or parsley flakes, if you must)
Pepper, salt to your taste

Boil potatoes and eggs. Cut apples and garlic into very small pieces. Cut the potatoes into half-inch or smaller pieces. Place apples and garlic in the bottom of a salad bowl, then chop green onions and celery and add a layer of this over the apples and garlic.

Add a layer of potatoes, then a second layer of onions and celery, and top with remaining potatoes. Garnish with finely-chopped eggs, sprinkle parsley over all. Mix the vinegar and oil, season with pepper and salt, and pour over the salad.

Refrigerate overnight, if you've time, then mix it all together, and serve. Some like to serve this salad warm, or almost-hot; it all depends upon your taste. (Six servings.)

National also offers boneless brisket, which is great on the grill. And there are the whole fryers on special at Jitney Jungle, along with leg quarters as well. Winn-Dixie and National offer breast quarters along with the leg quarters—and we all know that chicken is a favorite for the barbecue meal!

Yellow onions are specially priced at Delchamps and Jitney Jungle, a good for slicing into a salad, perhaps with some of those juicy, juicy tomatoes from Winn-Dixie, from smaller salad tomatoes to the larger ones. Or, you might want to cook your tomatoes right on the grill, along with the other "goodies." Try:

TOMATOES ON THE GRILL

Brush tomato halves with a zesty oil and vinegar dressing, or Italian dressing, top with pepper, salt and buttered bread crumbs. Place, cut side up, of course, on foil over your greased grill or right on the grill, for several minutes.

For dessert, cookies and some of those grapes on special at National, or cantaloupe from Jitney Jungle, or watermelon from Winn-Dixie or Delchamps.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

At 6 p.m. this evening the 1989 Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon will get underway.

Jerry Lewis and volunteers across America will be raising funds to use in research and treatment of muscular dystrophy.

This will be the 13th year the Waveland Civic Association will be sponsoring the telethon with Louie Smolensky serving as chairman.

Charles Henderson of Charlie Henderson Ford has graciously donated the use of his car dealership's facilities as headquarters for the telethon.

Smolensky said there are seven telephone lines, and a person only has to dial one telephone number to make a pledge. The number is 467-9005.

Cooperation from the community has been tremendous this year, Smolensky reports.

Many merchants have donated different items to benefit the fundraiser, and everything is really appreciated.

The telethon will run from 6 p.m. today through 6 p.m. tomorrow, (Labor Day).

WGNO-TV, Channel 26 or Cable Channel 9 will carry the telethon.

Smolensky said the telethon can use volunteers to make phone calls to solicit donations, as he still has several slots open due to the large number of telephones the group will be using this year at Charlie's.

If you would like to donate a little time to the very worthy cause, give Louie a call at 467-9005 or drop by Charlie's Ford which is located on Highway 90 at the Waveland-Bay St. Louis line.

Do not forget to call and make your pledge, I will be making mine.

Arrangements have been made this year to accept major credit card pledges, Jay Lagasse, Civic Association president, reports.

On Sunday night the Waveland Civic Association in cooperation with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis will present the annual fireworks display.

Fireworks are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Garfield Ladner Memorial Fishing Pier with the Waveland Fire Department in charge.

Jay Lagasse, association president, reports there will be a large display of fireworks this year.

We are hoping there will be a large number of folks along the beach watching the big fireworks display.

Last week, a Gallup poll revealed that Americans say they are willing to pay higher taxes to improve education. The following day, Mississippi Governor Ray Mabus was quoted echoing the same sentiment. And, in a published excerpt of Secretary of State Dick Melpus' speech at the Neshoba County Fair, he also gave every reason to expect that new taxes were on the way.

This is unsettling. Not one taxpayer is paying too little in taxes. Government spends too much. If you need to be reminded, look at your last paycheck.

In Mississippi, we either improve education or remind the last person leaving the state to turn off the lights. No questioning that.

However, that new taxes will be needed poses a few questions.

What happened to governmental reorganization? Aren't there tens—if not hundreds—of millions of dollars to be saved there?

How will the new taxes for improving education be used? Certainly, to reach the governor's very worthwhile goals, but thus far specifics have been kept under cover.

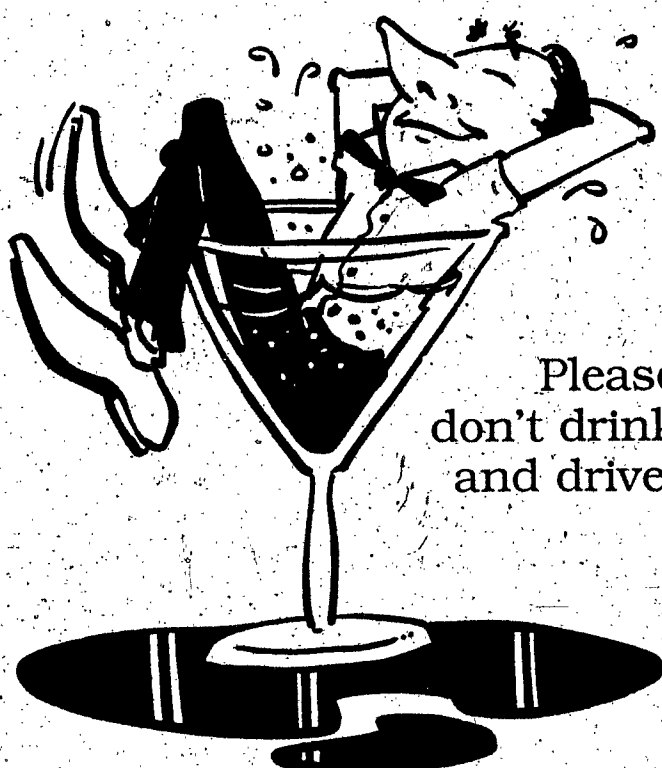

And, is there not some money to be saved through school district consolidation? No one doubts that it is a controversial matter, but if funding education is a priority, what's the delay?

Higher taxes are at hand, not only on the state level, but also on the federal and local levels. Compare millage rates from last year to this year. And, just last week, a lobbyist who represents Mississippi in Washington, told the Mississippi Senate Finance Committee there is talk of a new federal tax on gas. He said the minimum per gallon increase being discussed is 15 cents.

Increasing taxes is too easy. Cutting waste and spending wisely is noble.

Until government decides to implement the latter, it should not even consider the former.

Under the influence

Sixteen-year-old Ceres Horn and 18-year-old Thomas Colley were both promising students. She wanted to teach mathematics like her father. He wanted to capture life in a camera, just like Ansel Adams. Both would have probably realized their dreams, if it were not for a fellow by the name of Ricky Gates.

Gates was the engineer behind the wheel of a Conrail freight train when it collided with an Amtrak passenger train 20 miles north-east of Baltimore, Md. That Jan. 4, 1987 accident, the worst in Amtrak history, injured 174 people and killed 16, including Ceres Horn and Thomas Colley.

Why? At first, investigators wondered if a brake failed. It didn't. Then, they looked at warning signals. However, examination revealed that they were functioning properly. Finally, the investigation focused on Gates, who admitted to safety officials that he took an illegal drug shortly before the crash. A man with a hundred lives in his hand "lit up a joint" on the job. While that thought is scary, what Gates later told authorities is even more frightening. According to Gates, it is a "very accepted practice" for rail workers to use drugs and alcohol.

But drug abuse isn't confined to the rails.

In January 1988, a commuter plane crashed in Colorado killing nine aboard. The National Transportation Safety Board ruled that the pilot's cocaine use was a contributing cause.

And an Insurance Institute for Highway Safety Study conducted in 1986 found that 18 percent of a random sample of 300 truck drivers tested positive for the presence of either drugs or alcohol.

I believe the American public has a right to know that commercial pilots, railroad engineers, bus drivers and others whose judgement is routinely critical to the safety of travelers are not operating under the influence of a controlled substance.

How do we do that? Drug testing.

Most efforts to test transportation operators are met with strong opposition. One union official said that "drug testing is wrong, illegal and degrading to any person." Try telling that to the Horn and Colley families.

I recently cosponsored a bill in the Senate to meet that opposition head on. S. 561 addresses five forms of testing; pre-employment, reasonable suspicion, post-accident, periodic recurring, and random testing. This bill has been reported out of the Senate Commerce Committee, and I hope the full Senate will consider it soon.

Drug testing of key transportation workers is a reasonable step toward making the system safe.

It won't help Ceres and Thomas, but it could save others just like them.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor
Ray Mabus

Mississippi's needs are the same as this nation's

Our state and our country are undergoing a change.

And this Labor Day week, we see it as a change that we can all brag on. In many ways, it's a change that reminds us that we are indeed united as states in a common goal.

Many years ago, it was difficult to buy a product that didn't have the phrase "Made in America" imprinted on it. Our pride in our production was at an all-time high. We talked about "American know-how" and proved every day that our nation was number one in the world economy.

After the Second World War, this country produced while the rest of the world rebuilt. It was a period of fantastic growth.

Our home-grown businesses expanded at a rate that set the rest of the world on its ears. We invested in research and development, designed new products and produced materials that cost less than foreign goods.

In short, our competition was limited to the man or woman working next to us.

Then something happened. The new kids started appearing on the block. Those that we helped after the war were now in a position of taking our "American know-how" and selling it back to us.

In the past two decades, international trade has practically shot through the roof. For example, in 1969, our exports were around $35 billion a year. Currently, exports are over $300 billion a year.

But, even at these increased levels, we're having trouble keeping pace with imports.

Now is the time to get back in the race. We must succeed in overseas markets as well as foreign nations have done in ours. In celebrating the 120th anniversary of Labor Day this week, I hope we have also reflected on ourselves.

Let's join hands and pool the strengths we have always had to create tomorrow's marketplace. Let's recognize that those who were once competitors are now our neighbors. Those who were once rivals are now our partners. What was once a contest must now be cooperation.

We have come a long way, but the trip isn't over yet.

One thing is sure, we have the hardest working and greatest labor force in the world. This week, let's pat ourselves on the back for a job well done.

But as we return to work after the last holiday of the summer, let's continue to create, to work and to build the best.

By taking pride in our production, "American know-how" will not be just a memory of days past, it will be a badge of honor for the future.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fellow congressman notes Smith's accomplishments

Dear Editor:

I called him "Sheriff" and he always called me "Judge." We sat next to each other on both the Government Operations Committee as well as on the Judiciary Committee of the House. We were elected together in November of 1988, and we were both conservative Republicans.

Larkin Smith was my good friend and political ally. Up here in Washington I can tell you we will miss his strong voice for the taxpayer in the fight against crime and his support of a strong American defense.

During the last week that we were in session, just before Larkin's death, Larkin had begun 28 days of speeches on the absurd situation that 28 different committees of the House are involved in fighting the so-called drug war.

As a judge, I could well understand the sheriff's frustration with the fact that you cannot fight a war on a criminal element when you have 28 different committees supposedly engaged in combat.

As a freshman class project, we were all joining Larkin Smith in his effort to point out the absurdity of this divided jurisdiction which makes it almost impossible for our Drug Czar Bill Bennett to get his job done.

You should be proud of the job your representative did and the mark he made in less than a year in Washington. I was impressed at the funeral in Biloxi with the tremendous outpouring of support for someone who so justly deserved it. I truly will miss Larkin.

Clarify issues to find 'doggoned' solution

Dear Editor,

Occasionally we need to be reminded that there are three sides to every issue: (1) your side, (2) my side, and (3) the right side!

I have lived in Bay St. Louis about three decades and to the best of my knowledge and belief not a year has passed without the opposing teams stand 'doggedly' determined to win the battle of what to do about dogs—animal shelters for dogs, leash laws, etc.

This round seems to me doggoned serious. No dog is worth the hard feelings being generated over the issues. A feuding, a-fussin' and a-fighting would only make matters worse—or am I being dogmatic?

Perhaps each of us should take a self-examination, ask ourselves some questions to clarify the issues: would you and members of your family like to live near an animal shelter? If not, why not?

Would you, or members of your family like to be pressured to give away or sell your land to a person or persons who propose to use it as an animal shelter?

Have any of us overlooked the fact that our members of the board of supervisors were elected by the people, and their decisions are based on what they believe to be the will of the people?

I read somewhere that the first animals domesticated by Indian tribes were wolves and our present day dogs are descendants, that there are "good dogs" and "bad dogs," and "harmless" but no-account dogs," and that dogs are pretty much like people. Put a bunch of them together and they are sure to set up a howl.

I'm trying not to wonder why we think this way

Sometimes, I am totally amazed at how the human mind works.

To see what I mean, go anywhere where cement work is being done. The minute a sign goes up saying "Wet Cement," somebody comes along and writes his name on it.

"Wet Paint" and "Wet Floor" signs work just the same way, except that fingerprints and footprints are the only signatures which appear.

"Do Not Touch" signs are my favorite. Posting one of those almost guarantees that somebody's fingerprints will end up all over whatever isn't supposed to be touched.

Hang around the stronger version, the "You Break It, You Buy It" sign, and sooner or later, you will see someone, very intentionally, picking up the most fragile item.

Think about it the next time you're at a zoo. There are all those signs that tell visitors "Do Not Feed the Animals" but there's all that popcorn and junk food in the animals' quarters.

The reaction seems to be the same to any of what I call the "Do Not" signs, whether they actually include those two words or any of a dozen other phrases like "Prohibited" or even "Thou Shalt Not."

Are we all into closet rebellion or something? Is the little kid in us putting his hand into the cookie jar for just one more after he's been told not to do it?

I was reading some stuff the other day while I waited for a doctor to tell me my broken foot isn't as broken as it was last month, and saw something about an experiment with the mind.

Some research team is trying to say that the mind sometimes likes to take off on its own, based on an experiment where a group of people was told not to think about white bears, then asked to record their thoughts.

You probably guessed it before you finished reading the paragraph—all these folks could think about was white bears.

Maybe that explains why thoughts totally unrelated to whatever I'm trying to concentrate on continue to jump into my mind.

For example, I was trying to take an exam in a juvenile delinquency treatment seminar not too long ago and was trying to answer a question phrased something like, "The governor has just appointed you to a juvenile justice task force and has asked you to design a treatment program for recidivists (budget limitations not to be considered). Outline your program."

I was sitting there trying to explain the necessity of counseling for the offender's family along with the offender and my household budget kept wandering in and out of my mind.

I very nearly wrote down something like, "rent, $295; student loan payment, $50; car maintenance...." That would have left no chance of an A on that test.

On rare occasions, wandering thoughts can be useful. I was sitting in one board's meeting one time and remembered what a different board had done about a week before: the memory led me to ask a question that resulted in a good story.

Usually, though, wandering thoughts are nothing but a nuisance.

When you're told you should concentrate, though, that is exactly when you can't. It's like somebody telling me to relax my arm because they're about to stick a needle in it.

The one and only thing I become completely unable to do at that moment is relax that arm. It's almost like looking at one of those "Do Not" signs telling me something like "No Relaxing Allowed."

The only solution I have found is to ask the doctor or nurse to wipe the arm off and have the needle ready, but talk to me for a few minutes about any topic of their choice. I instruct them to stick me sometime after the conversation starts and to do it casually without mentioning it.

Almost invariably, the only thing these people can talk about is the needle.

I don't know why the mind works this way, but I'll bet I could concentrate much better on just about anything else if I weren't trying so hard not to think about it.

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Calling a spade a spade

"Why are there so few vocations to the priesthood, and to the religious sisterhood and brotherhood?"

This question, or a variation of it, is heard so frequently that one develops a dread of hearing it. It is a problem which won't go away and which seems to have no solutions.

One of the stock stabs at an answer is the personality image problem. It is stated all too frequently by young people that they do not want to be like the religious and the priests whom they know. The ones whom they know, they say, are too aloof, too unfeeling, too inhuman, too out of touch with reality.

Further, there is a professional image problem, in that today's youth tell you that they can become somebody prestigious and well-to-do like a physician or engineer, and still be able to help others as the priest or religious does. Why not have the best of both worlds?

Sexism is another issue which church authorities obviously do not consider a problem, but sheer arithmetic and, as I see it, true Christianity say otherwise to the tune of over 50 percent of our total population; namely, females.

At last count, not much more than thirty percent of the women themselves approved of women priests. However, that may easily be read as a state of brainwashing brought about by a sexist atmosphere.

Clearly, church authorities do not want to own up to the blatant male, sexist, chauvinistic distortion which claims that Jesus wanted to ordain only males to the priesthood, since females have not been made in his image and likeness.

Nor do church leaders have the insight and/or the courage to admit that the alleged theological arguments against the ordination of women are in reality male-biased rationalizations. For all of my 32 years of priesthood, I have tried in vain to see how the male is supposedly cast in the image of Jesus, but not the female—who is the male's companion in everything else outside of religion.

Recently, a priest friend mentioned in the course of a discussion that 40 percent of the black priests in the United States are gay. I marveled at the figure momentarily, then quickly remembered that the figure is about average for the priesthood in general in the United States. Some estimates go a few percentage points lower. Other estimates run as high as 50 percent.

Perhaps the most attention-catching aspect of that survey-backed educated guess is the arithmetic of homosexual incidence among the clergy: four times that of the male population at large.

Considering the fact that a considerable number of homosexuals play in the National Football League and in other professional sports, it is a stereotype to suggest that gays are attracted more to one field of endeavor than to another, even though their numbers appear somewhat greater in beauty culture, in the fine arts and in fashion design.

Why, then, the greater homosexual incidence among the Catholic clergy? Apparently, this is an incidence which is far lower among the clergy of other denominations. If we try to consider all the variables, the only substantive difference between the Catholic and non-Catholic clergy is the law of celibacy.

Celibacy, of course, is a law incumbent upon all Latin-rite

Catholic clergy, whether heterosexual or homosexual. The presupposition of today's Church is that there will be many homosexuals applying for the priesthood and being ordained priests, but that they will simply abide by the universal law.

That is all well and good if the church is satisfied with such a proportion of heterosexual vis-a-vis homosexual priests. However, there is a penalty involved. Complaints from diocesan and religious seminaries are pretty much the same; namely, that gays find a haven, a custom-made cover in celibate communities.

The result is that they are attracted to them and have been coming in increasing numbers. This is also all well and good, since no one has the right to discriminate against them. Yet, the upshot of this situation is that straights look in on the developing scene and want no part of it.

There is no question here about talent and competence, for a number of the best scholars, best preachers, best pastors and best administrators are counted among the gay clerical community.

Nor is the problem one of discrimination or prejudice, but rather the problem of discomfort in the atmosphere of a radically different subculture, of different tastes in the various sectors of life, of a separate jargon and communication unique to the gay culture, and of a general milieu alien to a heterosexual.

Hence, the drop in vocations from the heterosexual population. The prevailing wisdom in all the discussions I have been a party to is that, until clerical celibacy becomes an option, the heterosexual percentage will continue to slide among clerics.

At the same time, the world of materialism is sucking up most of the vocational prospects in this part of the planet. Untainted by materialism, some Catholic countries of the third World and a couple of countries of the Old World have enough vocations. The bottom line is that we need prayer, changes and sacrifice.

Word of Faith to air video seminar on teens

Statistics show more than 50 percent of American teenagers between 15 and 19 have had sexual relations. Teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases are vital concerns, with abortion or even suicide as potential consequences.

Parents often feel that they are powerless to intervene, but there are ways parents can help to prevent premature sexual involvement.

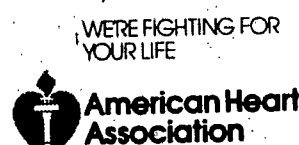

"How to Help Your Child Say 'No' to Sexual Pressure," an eight-session video seminar for parents of teenagers and pre-teens, will be sponsored by the Word of Faith Christian Fellowship, starting Thursday, Sept. 7.

The video features Josh McDowell, well-known Christian speaker to high school and college young people.

Topics covered include: why young people become sexually active, how to help them stay out of potential pressure situations, building self-esteem and the ability to say no, and how to reinforce positive influences, as well as valuable information and practical help in many other areas. For more information about the course, call 467-4488.

Alcan announces plans for Ohio construction

Alcan Cable, a division of Alcan Aluminum Corporation, announced it will construct a new $20 million aluminum cable plant during the next 18 months to produce aluminum transmission and distribution conductor cable, as well as aluminum building wire for the electrical utilities and electrical distributor markets. The announcement was made by Alcan Cable President Joseph R. Frangipane.

The new plant will require a building of nearly 200,000 square feet in size to be constructed on a 30-acre parcel of land, just north of Roseburg, Ohio.

At full employment, the new aluminum cable plant is expected to employ 150 workers. However, at its scheduled opening, in early 1991, employment is likely to range from 80 to 90.

"When completed, the new plant will produce aluminum transmission and distribution conductor cable, as well as aluminum building wire. These products are sold nationally to utilities and electrical distributors," Frangipane commented.

"The location of this new facility on the West Coast provides Alcan Cable with the opportunity to better serve our existing West Coast customers. Currently, our most western plant is located in Sedalia, Mo., so we see this new location as a very key ingredient to growth and continued success," Frangipane concluded.

Frangipane also announced that James A. Mann, a veteran Alcan Cable employee for 23 years, has been appointed project/plant manager.

Alcan Cable operates plants in Sedalia, Mo., Bay St. Louis and in Williamsport, Penn., with its national headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.

Hawks end d'Iberville jinx, win 33-14

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock North Central Hawks have broken the d'Iberville jinx by trouncing the Warriors 33-14.

The Hawks ended a decade of losing to d'Iberville under what Hancock Head Coach Irvin Bayre had called "a spell" in a pre-game interview. During the last five years, Hancock had not mistakes would have to be eliminated or we'd never beat them."

"Sometimes, you've just got to get over a jinx and play football."

The game not only gives the Hawks a victory in their opener, but racks up a win in one of the few district and conference contests played so far this season.

23, setting Jackson up to score the season's first touchdown on an 11-yard run.

Goff kicked the extra point to give the Hawks a 7-0 lead, but d'Iberville retaliated almost immediately when Warrior quarterback Conrad Hamel lobbed a long ball to Lance Vogt, connecting for a 78-yard touchdown. A PAT kick tied the score

With a kick upping the score to 14-7 for good measure, the Warriors sent the ball back to the Hawks, who took to the air on most of the next series. Quarterback Casey Davis lobbed a pass to Goff with only three seconds left in the half for a touchdown and 20 yards.

The Hawks faked a kick as they tried to run a two-point conversion but d'Iberville's defense read the play anyway, leaving the halftime score 14-13 with the Warriors leading.

In second half action, the Hawks rallied. Jeff Favre provided some of the fire for the team by blocking a d'Iberville punt at the 10, then Hancock went back to a ground game for a while.

For the first touchdown of the second half, Davis handed off to Goff, who ran a sweep to take the lead. Another try for two was unsuccessful, posting a score of 19-14.

The Warriors went aerial but Heath Necaise picked off a Hamel pass to set the Hawks up inside the 10, with Goff pushing the ball across for another six. Yet another try for two failed.

With a score of 25-13 and 5:20 left in the third, the Warriors again returned to the air.

Favre tried Necaise's trick, snatching a d'Iberville ball out of the air to set the Hawks up on the 50.

This set up Goff's next feat, a 50-yard touchdown run.

With a pass for a two point conversion, Hancock had a lead of 33-14 by the time the third quarter ended.

Hancock iced the cake with a 25-yard touchdown pass from Davis to Ike Majors.

For their next game, the Hawks travel to Pearl River Central in Carriere. However, there will a seventh and eighth grade home game at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday against St. John.

been able to come close to winning.

Favre, who had also said that Hancock also could not afford to make mistakes against d'Iberville, stated, "We played hard the whole ball game, but in the first half we made some mistakes that stalled us."

"When we talked to the boys at halftime we told them those

With the Hawks trying to take advantage of their top runners, including Terrence Goff and Tyrus Jackson, while the Warriors showed more talent in an aerial game, the first quarter remained scoreless.

7-7 with 10:33 left in the first half.

The Hawks could not get through the d'Iberville defense on their next series and punted the ball away. Hancock's defense squashed a keeper on a third and goal at the three yard-line, but Shawntel Williams burst through the line on the fourth down for a touchdown.

Tigers drop opener 35-14 to Pearl River Rebels

Special to the Echo

By Kanta Haynes

The Bay High Tiger's took a 35-14 shellacking from the Pearl River Rebels in a hard fought contest in Pearl River, La. Friday night.

"We did some good things out there on the field, and there are some things that we have to improve on for future football games," stated Bay High head coach Dodd Lee.

Pearl River took an 7-0 lead early in the first quarter. Leading 7-0 late in the second quarter, the Rebels hit for another TD to go into the lockerroom with a 14-0 cushion over the visiting Tigers.

In the second half the Tigers came out fighting, with a much improved defense and a strong offensive attack against the Rebels. Emmanuel Antoine hit for 42 yards to set up the Tiger's first score. Junior quarterback Charlie Mitchel carried for the TD. The Rebels led 21-7.

In the final quarter of the ballgame the Tigers clawed for another touchdown. Quarterback Charlie Mitchel hit junior Thomas Brink with a 37 yard pass for the final Bay High score of the night, giving the Rebels a 35-14 edge over the Blue and Gold.

"With our 2 for 11 receptions, 280 yards on 33 rushes, 15 first downs, 1 lost fumble, and a punting average of 2-34, as opposed to their 2 for 7 receptions, 407 yards on 57 rushing plays, and a punting average of 4-37, I think we made a very good effort, but we just have to improve on our overall play," stated Coach Lee.

Next Friday, September 8, the Tigers go head-to-head with arch rival Saint Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws at Tiger Stadium, with a 7:30 p.m. kick off.

Rocks squeak by Pirates

Special to the Echo

By Tom Ackerman

It obviously wasn't going to be as easy as some of the St. Stanislaus Rockchaws thought.

The Pass Christian High School Pirates were hungry, and they were looking to make a meal out of the Rockchaws.

"They just got after us," was how Rock head coach Ken Lyons summed up his team's squeaker over the visitors, 14-13.

"They (the Pirates) played good ball, but we managed to keep our poise." And it was that poise that probably spelled the difference between a season-opening win or the first-game defeat that has plagued the Rocks for the past few years.

The difference came late in the fourth quarter (always a crucial time for the Rockchaws) when the visiting Pirates were on the verge of snatching a 14-7 advantage away from SSC.

With 2:59 left in the game, the Pirates scored on a run by wide receiver Lashan Ausmer, a thorn in the side of the Rock defense all night.

Then Pass set up to kick for the extra point. But they had larceny in their hearts. It was only a ruse. They were going for two.

And the Rocks' defensive "poise" was really put to the test. Following the runner on a wide sweep around the right side, the "graveyard" defense held and stopped Pass High just short of the goal line to give the Rocks a chance to hold on for three more minutes.

Fearing an onside kick by the Pirates to regain possession, the Rocks seemed to lose their poise momentarily, but the kick sailed, Rock Shannon Garrett snagged it, and the Rocks held on til the final buzzer for the win.

In the opening period of play, the visiting Pass High Pirates and the Rockchaws traded possessions with neither able to capitalize on their breaks—until late in the period.

On the second down of the Rocks' final possession of the period, after SSC running back Ken Booker had raced 20 yards to bring the ball from the Rock 30 to midfield, quarterback Cedric Smith's pass attempt was intercepted, and the Pirates took over at their own 25.

Picking up four first downs, Pass moved to the Rock 14 with seconds left on the first quarter clock. From there, with no time left, Pirate Ausmer surprised the Rocks with the score, leaving the home team on the short end of a 0-6 score. The PAT kick was good, and Pass High had the momentum.

But their joy was short-lived. The Rocks began their next series on their own 35. Playmaker Smith moved it to the 39 on a keeper, and then pitched out to runner Booker who scurried to the 46 for a first down.

A Smith pass to receiver Mickey Quinlan was called back on a penalty, followed by another flag on a Garrett run. But Booker took up the slack, snagged a pass and took the ball to the Pass 40 for another first.

Another run by Garrett, and two carries by Gary Ponthieux moved the ball to the 27.

On second down, Smith hurled a long pass to receiver Brien Martin, in position and waiting, who put the Rocks on the board, 6-7.

Rockchaw kicker Duncan Matheson did his job, and the Rocks had tied the game.

Late in the third period of play, the Rocks took possession at their own 34.

Runs by Ponthieux, Smith, Booker and Garrett moved the ball to the Pass 23 on three first downs.

With 2:43 left in the third quarter, Smith connected with Garrett on a pass from the 23, and the Rock running back carried for the score, 13-7.

True to form, Matheson found the uprights and the Rocks had a somewhat comfortable 14-7 lead. Maybe too comfortable.

The Pirates fought back for another score, but their run attempt for two points and the win failed at the goal line.

"We made a lot of mistakes," Rock coach Lyons noted after the game. "We've got a lot to work on this week."

And to give credit where it is due, he added: Pass High "plays good ball. They were a lot hungrier than we were; and they probably wanted that win a lot more than we did. We just weren't as hungry as I expected us to be."

Next Friday will test just how determined the Rocks are.

Bay High is up. Last year, SSC won and overall in the 21-game series, the Rocks hold an 11-10 lead. Game time 7:30 at Bay High.

4 Drinking, boating don't mix—

Coast Guard plans to enforce 'Boating While Intoxicated' law

Boaters who plan on having a few drinks while on the water this weekend better be careful. Starting on Friday Sept. 1, the U.S. Coast Guard, state and local law enforcement officers will be enforcing a new 'Boating While Intoxicated' law.

The program will start in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama on the Gulf Coast. On the East Coast, the law will be enforced in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania. Enforcement will be expanded to other states as more testing equipment and trained personnel become available.

The civil penalty for intoxicated boaters will be a fine of up to $1,000. Criminal penalties are a fine of up to $5,000 and/or a year in jail. Criminal prosecution will be reserved for the most serious cases, usually involving serious injury, loss of life, or major property damage.

The Coast Guard will be working closely with state and local authorities to enforce boating while intoxicated laws. The object of the program is to get intoxicated boaters off the water so they do not pose a threat to themselves or others.

Last year 946 people lost their lives in boating accidents. Studies conducted by the Coast Guard and National Transportation Safety Board indicate that up to half of those deaths may have been alcohol related.

According to statistics collected by the Department of Transportation, boating accidents are the number two cause of transportation related deaths.

Two tests will be used to determine intoxication. The first is a behavioral standard, which determines the effect of intoxicants on a person's manner, speech, muscular movement, disposition, general appearance or behavior.

The second test is a blood alcohol content (BAC) measurement.

A recreation boater is considered intoxicated when the BAC is .10 percent or greater. However, the federal law is written to conform to any enacted state BAC standard, higher or lower than .10 percent, on waters within the geographical boundaries of that state.

Even without alcohol, four hours exposure to noise, vibration, sun, glare, wind and other motion on the water produces measurable fatigue, which slows reaction time. Adding alcohol or drugs to boating stress factors drastically intensifies their effect and significantly multiplies the accident risk.

Coast Episcopal High schedules open house

Coast Episcopal High School will hold open house on Thursday, Sept. 7 at 7 p.m.

Parents of students presently enrolled are invited to meet the teachers and administrators and to follow the student's daily schedule.

Parents of prospective students are invited to come to the open house to meet other parents, to meet the faculty, to view the school and to gain an understanding of the schools purpose and curriculum.

Coast Episcopal High School is located on Espy Avenue, two miles north of the beach in Pass Christian. For more information call 452-9442.

How most people deal with the symptoms of a heart attack.

Hiding from a problem doesn't make it go away. In fact, hiding from the symptoms of a heart attack can make the problem worse. Much worse.

Be alert to heart attack symptoms. Chest pain and pressure are the most common. Pain may radiate down your arm, neck or shoulder. There's also shortness of breath. Cold sweat. Dizziness. Faintness and nausea.

Sometimes only a few symptoms occur. Sometimes more. Sometimes the symptoms can even be due to another problem.

Only one thing is certain. The sooner heart problems are treated, the better your chance of recovery.

That's why we're here. The Heart Emergency Service at NorthShore Regional Medical Center is the first of its kind in this area. Located in our Emergency Department, we save lives by detecting heart problems rapidly and providing necessary treatment.

If you experience any symptoms of a heart attack, get immediate medical attention. Anytime, day or night, you can call our emergency 24-Hour Heartline™ at 1-800-HEART-13. An emergency care professional is available around the clock to answer questions, give advice or even dispatch an ambulance if necessary.

24-Hr. Heartline

The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center offers a complete range of cardiac care services. That's important to you during those first critical hours following a heart attack. And although you'll probably never need them, it's good to know our heart team is available 24 hours a day.

We employ powerful clot-dissolving drugs that can save lives by stopping and, in some instances, actually reversing the effects of heart attacks. The sooner these drugs are administered the better the chance of a complete recovery.

And advanced diagnostic capabilities, including our state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory, help us assess and treat heart problems more accurately and effectively than ever.

We also offer educational programs that help people prevent heart attacks, and rehabilitation services that help heart patients recover faster and more fully.

Caire still cooking, writing up a storm at 72 years old

BY DENA BISNETTE

Katy Caire describes herself as a "scribbler," someone who is always writing ideas on little scraps of paper and trying to decipher her notes later.

Many of the 72-year-old former newspaper reporter's notes have to do with food, and she is considering gathering some of her more recent "Cooking Up a Storm" columns and publishing a second cookbook.

The original "Cooking up a Storm" was a featured column

"I remember once I got a recipe for ham loaf and ended up with spam," she explained.

Among her definite likes are using a lot of fresh items and a lot of lemon and parsley.

"I think if I was down to my last dollar, I'd spend it on fresh lemons and fresh parsley," Caire said.

She grows her own parsley in her yard and eats it when "my cat and my rabbit don't get it." Her rabbit is a particular wild brown rabbit who pays daily female reporters there, working on general assignments.

Even though there were few women in her chosen profession at the time, Caire did not feel the kind of discrimination women complain about today.

"In the early days, all the men looked after you. Everyone looked after you," she said. "The older ones always took the time to teach you what you needed to know."

"I learned a lot from my early editors. They were so strict about grammar, language and everything."

Caire found that in those days, even though she was a woman in a man's profession, all anyone really cares about was how well she did her job.

"You had to be accurate, you had to get it and you had to get it fast," she remembered.

When she became engaged to her first husband and he went to work at a different paper, the New Orleans States, Caire was transferred to the society section.

She began writing what she called a "chat column," and an editor decided her name was too long. Her name, which today is Katharine Patricia Cecilia Barrett Daly McGuire Caire, was uals, convention services and speeches. She continued operating the business until she moved to Pass Christian.

By that time, McGuire had died and she had married Caire, who had been McGuire's close friend and Louisiana State University classmate. They originally moved to Pass Christian in 1963, the same year they married, but continued to also maintain a home in New Orleans for a number of years after moving.

"I've always loved Pass Christian and the coast. We used to say that Pass Christian was more a part of New Orleans than some of the new suburbs. Of course, you know that when I was growing up there, downtown New Orleans was like a small town," Caire said.

Having always worked on civic projects like Boy Scouts when their sons were children, the Caireds decided to do some civic work in Pass Christian. The Pass Christian Isles Volunteer Fire Department began in their living room.

Another of their projects was Friends of the Library, in which Katy Caire is still active. She is one of the organization's past presidents.

"We had a friends of the library before there was a library. We had a very nice town library, but no public library hasn't decided whether it is for publication. "Even if I don't do anything do anything with it, writing is still good for the brain," she said.

and a group of us decided we needed one," she explained.

They organized a book donation drive and Caire and her friends ended up collecting and cataloging books before they had a place to put them.

"If you live someplace, you should work to make it a better place to live," she said.

In 1969, just in time for Hurricane Camille to destroy their equipment, the Caireds opened The Owl. After The Owl closed, they went back into public relations, then briefly operated the Waveland Hancock Hawk.

The second paper also closed and the Caireds went to work on a history of Pass Christian, which they published in 1976.

They started one on Waveland, but due to Ronny Caire's illness and death, it has never been completed.

COOKING UP A STORM

BY

Katy Caire

"I like to get into the story behind the food. I want to do more than just give the recipe."

—Katy Caire

in The Owl, a weekly newspaper she and her late husband R.J. "Ronny" Caire published from 1969 to 1971 in Pass Christian.

The column, along with a new venture called "Shopping Up a Storm," still appears as a weekly feature in The Sea Coast Echo.

Caire's first cookbook, with the same title as her column, was published in 1971. Changed from the original binder form into a paperback, the book went into its second printing in 1979.

At least half of the book consists of anecdotes rather than recipes.

"I like to get into the story behind the food. I want to do more than just give the recipe," said Caire. "I enjoy the history behind it."

She tells about the first known use of a particular food, like corn; the origin of a recipe for "drunken beans" as a family's first meal after a hurricane left their stove unusable; comments on a cookbook in which she has found a recipe and Southern color.

Caire is also fond of dropping the names of friends from whom she got a recipe.

She credits, to a large degree, the Southern tradition of good food for her interest in cooking.

"When I was growing up we had this wonderful old cook named Mary, and my mother always set a good table," said Caire, a Biloxi native who grew up in New Orleans and on the Gulf Coast. "I think with the Southern tradition of fine dining, our palates are exposed quite early to good food."

She tries out every recipe before she publishes it.

"So far, I've never had to take one back," she said, knocking on her wooden dining table.

Caire enjoys reading cookbooks but seldom cooks from them.

"There's nothing new under the sun," she explained, "Just variations on a theme."

"I'm the kind who cooks by dashes and daubs and smidgens. I wrote some of my recipes that way. That's why I say now to 'Add this or that to your taste.' It left people asking, 'Now, how much is a smidgen?'"

She has definite food likes and dislikes but has to think hard to remember a recipe she tried and did not like.

visits to her cottage in Pass Christian Isles, an area which Caire said gives her the opportunity to observe birds and animals because it is a game reserve.

She also honed her cooking skills while helping her two late husbands entertain.

Her first husband, Dave McGuire, who died in 1960, had

When she met him, however, he was a newspaper man, just as her second husband was.

Caire's father was a realtor, but her grandfather had been in the newspaper business. She began following in his footsteps when she took a journalism course in addition to her regular coursework at Newcomb College in New Orleans.

Journalism was then a non-credit course taught by a former editor.

She started as a college correspondent for the old New Orleans Item-Tribune, then went to work as one of only two Katy before that. It was always Katharine. Dave always called me Katharine. Ronnie called me Katharine too. He never called me Katy," she said.

Caire continued to work at the newspaper until she became pregnant with the first of her two sons, Jack. Her second son is William.

Mothers did not hold jobs at that time, but Caire continued to write part-time and to do substitute work at the paper as often as she could.

Later on, she opened a public relations business, providing brochures, pamphlets, man-

Now Caire continues to work part-time because she believes in staying active. She also travels back and forth to Mandeville, La., where both her sons and her six grandsons now live, and is in the process of renovating her house.

"I don't want to be one of these old ladies who just sit at home. I hate rocking and I can't knit. I'd rather be off doing things with my friends or helping the old ladies who live here in the neighborhood," she said.

In addition to her writings about cooking, she is now doing some humorous writing. She

Biloxi's ethnic heritage depicted in photo exhibit

The rich flavor of Biloxi's ethnic heritage is examined in an upcoming photographic exhibit, "Biloxi's Ethnic Heritage: Images of Change and Tradition."

The exhibit will open Sept. 11 at the Waveland Public Library and hang through Nov. 30.

This exhibit, the result of a study being conducted by Stephen Flinn Young and D. C. Young, examines the diversity, contribution, and evolution of immigrant groups to the Gulf Coast.

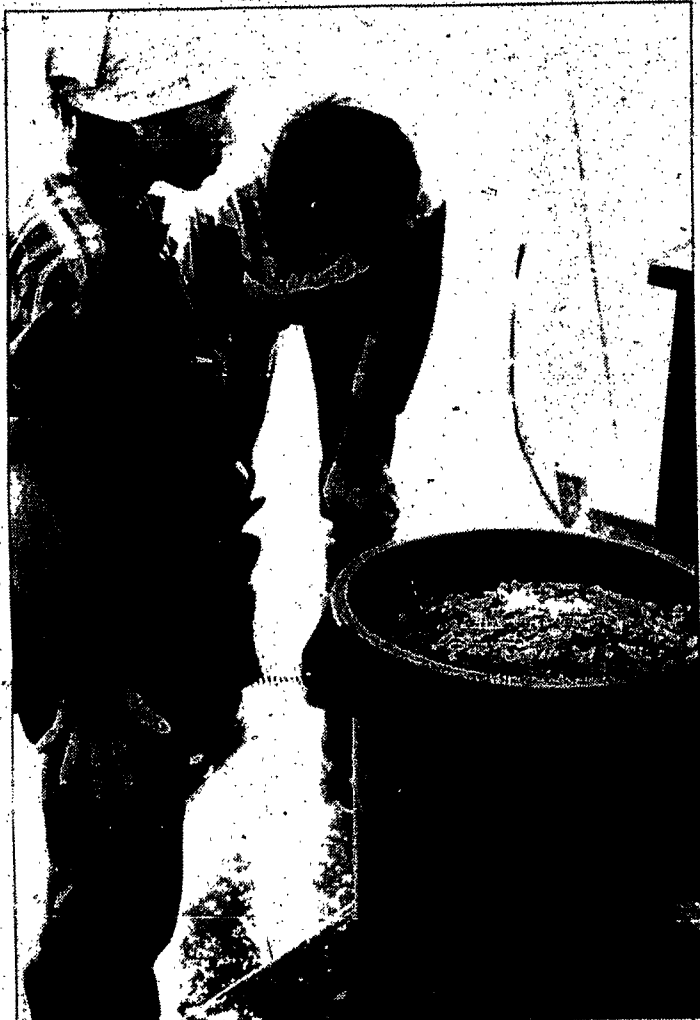

The Youngs focused on the Yugoslavians, Louisiana French and the Vietnamese, the three most numerous and influential of the immigrant groups in Biloxi.

The exhibit features 35

black-and-white photographs taken by D. C. Young and is comprised of images that show the occupations, social life and customs of these groups. The accompanying text panels and catalog complete the story with descriptions of Biloxi's ethnic heritage taken from interviews with over 150 Biloxians.

"Biloxi's Ethnic Heritage" is sponsored by the Department of Archives and History and funded by the National Endowment through the Mississippi Humanities Council. This exhibit is sponsored by the Old Capitol Museum.

The public is invited to view the exhibit Tuesday through Saturday during Library hours. For more information about the exhibit call 467-9240.

Weighing Cleaned Shrimp, Biloxi, Mississippi, 1988.

Vietnamese women who clean shrimp are paid by the weight of shells and heads left after removing the meat. Since seafood cleaning has been the common experience of other Biloxi immigrant groups, there is a feeling of mutual respect among those who have "gone through it."
